If you weren't here,
My thoughts and dreams go nowhere,
I couldn't run fingers through your hair,
Fire in my eyes would soon die out,
I'd have no one here to shout about.

If you weren't here,
Love would not be worth the hate,
I think I'd be in just terrible shape.
Without you, without you, I couldn't eat.
My hugs and kisses would have no heat.

If you weren't here,
Kisses would just blow away,
(I'd have) no memory of September days,
(I'd not) have courage to be so bold,
(My heart's) true warmth would soon grow cold.

If you weren't here,
Dreaming isn't worth the fall,
(I don't) think I could ever sleep at all,
(My eyes) would sting from tears I cried,
(Without you), without you, I'd rather die.

If you weren't here,
My thoughts and dreams go nowhere,
I couldn't run fingers through your hair,
Without you, without you, I couldn't eat.
My hugs and kisses would have no heat.

If you weren't here,
Kisses would just blow away,
(I'd have) no memory of September days,
(I'd not) have courage to be so bold,
(my heart's) true warmth would soon grow cold.

If you weren't here,
Dreaming isn't worth the fall,
(I don't) think I could ever sleep at all,
(My eyes) would sting from tears I cried,
(Without you), without you, I'd rather die.
