Key	Alt Key	BPM
E♭ minor	-	120

Could it be that's why we met—
To light a fire I can't forget.
You walked in like a loaded gun,
A spark that burned before it begun.
I saw the truth you tried to hide,
A twisted pull I felt inside.
And now I'm choking on regret,
Still asking why we ever met.

Maybe it's fate, or maybe it's a curse,
But every memory just makes it worse.

Could it be that's why we met—
To tear me down, to leave me wrecked.
Your wildfire eyes, they pulled me in,
But every touch felt like a sin.
I never believed in love at first sight,
But you proved me wrong in the worst damn light.
Tell me now, do you feel it yet—
Or was I just the price you set?

If our friends hadn't dragged us out that night,
Would I still be fighting for my life?
You played it sweet, you played it smart,
But poison tastes like sugar at the start.
You carved your name into my bones,
Then left me bleeding on my own.
And now I'm done trying to forget—
I want the truth, no more regrets.

Maybe it's fate, or maybe it's a curse,
But every memory just makes it worse.

Could it be that's why we met—
To tear me down, to leave me wrecked.
Your wildfire eyes, they pulled me in,
But every touch felt like a sin.
I never believed in love at first sight,
But you proved me wrong in the worst damn light.
Tell me now, do you feel it yet—
Or was I just the price you set?

I've been wrong before,
But this time I'm sure—
You were the storm I should've run from sooner.
Now every scar you left behind
Is just a warning sign
That I won't fall again for a lie like yours.

Could it be that's why we met—
To break me down, to make me bend.
But I'm still standing, I won't forget,
And I won't drown in your regret.
I never believed in love at first sight,
But you turned that hope into a fight.
So hear me now, I'm not your debt—
This ends with me, that's why we met.
